

October Real Estate Stats 2007

Chris Mygatt, Coldwell Banker Residential President and Chief Operating Officer Reports: October, closed units were 6.9%...The Average sales price went down by 5.5%, as a result of REO properties closing. The good news is that the listing market continues to tighten with a 2.7% decrease. Lessening supply is always good news. The million dollar market softened during the month of October by 22.4% in closed units. I'm looking forward to an even brighter 2008.

In 1992, Coldwell Banker became the first to advocate and practice Seller Disclosure well before it was required by law in some states. In 1995, Coldwell Banker became the first national, full-service real estate brand to have a presence online with the launch of coldwellbanker.com. We are unique in so many ways, including our Concierge program that provides home buyers and sellers with centralized access to various real estate related services. In addition, our Previews program is the recognized leader in the marketing of luxury properties throughout the world. We are focused on Fair Housing practices, superior customer service, and on being a productive part of the communities we serve. We are actively involved with Habitat for Humanity and strive diligently to give back to the communities that have helped us succeed in such a highly competitive business.
